BUT SHE'S JUST LIKE US

She does her own shopping.

Just a week after being watched by billions as she said her vows, Kate went shopping in Waitrose (OK, so it's not Lidl, but it's not Harrods Food Hall either), pushing her own trolley and everything.

She loves a sausage. Forget swan terrine, Kate rustles up a mean bangers and mash. Her favourite pudding is sticky toffee, which she eats at the The Old Boot in Stanford Dingley (although only about once a year, judging by that waistline).

She loves the High Street. Kate is a fan of Zara, Warehouse, Banana Republic, Reiss and Whistles, but her favourite shop of all is the bargain-tastic TK Maxx.

She eats Haribo. No snacking on foie gras blinis - Kate pops in to the paper shop in Bucklebury for her fix of Tangfastics and Starmix.

She goes to the flicks. They could have demanded a private showing and eaten their popcorn out of one of the Queen's crowns. But Wills and Kate went to see Bridesmaids in their local multiplex in Llandudno Junction.

She loves a white wine spritzer. She also loves a Jack Daniels and the odd cheeky cocktail.

Her family were working class. Kate's great-great-grandfather was a coal miner in Byker, Newcastle.

She loves a trashy musical. Kate and her mates have been to see Mamma Mia! many a time.

She wears affordable perfume. Kate's been dabbling on Dior Dune, £30 a bottle, for years.

She does her own make-up. Even on her wedding day - her must-have item is Revitalash mascara, £12.

Her favourite film is Dirty Dancing. Pippa even held a themed hen party at their home for her.

She and Wills like to get on the dance floor for a spot of bumping and grinding. Their favourite track is I Like The Way You Move by Bodyrockers.
